Bob,

I appreciate the many issues you all are dealing with and I appreciate you keeping SciPinion on the table to talk about. I'd be happy to set up a conference call for us all if that would help.

By legal issues, I wonder if you are referring to the need for anonymity. We are preparing for some SciPis to be conducted this summer that will identify all experts involved and their individual votes, hence no anonymity. We are infinitely flexible in how we can conduct the SciPis. Some of these SciPis will be peer reviews, the results of which will be submitted to EPA.

With regard to the one possible topic mentioned at our meeting (EO), would it be of interest to you all if the SciPi was paid for by someone else? If you were to say this topic was of interest and you would be interested in another independent peer review on the topic, I am confident I could get it funded. EPA could be involved as little or as much as needed.

Just let me know if we can arrange a conference call and/or how to proceed.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,

Sean Hays

I have not really been ignoring your emails and calls, as given all the issues percolating around EPA over the last few months I have not been able to sit down together with Tom Burke and Tom Sinks to talk about what might be some options for testing SciPinion. There are also some legal issues that I think we would have to work through depending on what direction this might go in. I hope I can meet with the Toms soon, but can't promise that.

Bob,

I wanted to follow up on our conversation about SciPinion. Have you had a chance to brief Tom Burke? Also, it is possible I can secure all the funding required to do the test project we discussed. Would this help matters? Don't hesitate to call me to discuss.

Best regards,

Sean

I had a good conversation with Tom last week. Although meeting on the 7th will not work, Tom asked that I work with you to get a meeting set up in January. He wants to involve Tom Sinks and Bob Kavlock as well. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss SciPinion and Dr. Sean Hays from Summit Toxicology would be the principal briefer.

Best,
